Launch of Nairobi City County El Nino Preparedness Plan 2023

The Nairobi City County Government has rolled out a comprehensive disaster management plan to clean the city daily, unclog and clean drainages, collect garbage among other activities to keep the city clean.

The plan will also address the anticipated impacts of the impending El Niño rains and support the citizens in responding effectively to any issues arising from the rains.

With heavy rains expected to affect various parts of the country from September 2023 to January 2024, Nairobi City County has put some measures in place including the deployment of youth as environmental officers and procurement of essential equipment to address the various challenges or emergencies that may arise during this period, to protect its residents and infrastructure.

Governor's Note

Dear Nairobians,

I am delighted to share with you the strides we have made over the last month and our continued commitment to keeping you informed about the progress and developments within our vibrant county as we get into the second year of our County's growth and prosperity.

I would like to take this opportunity to highlight some of the key achievements and initiatives that we have undertaken together as a community.

We were privileged to host the inaugural Africa Climate Summit right here in our county. This event that brought together different stakeholders from across the globe provided a platform for critical discussions on climate action. We are resolute in translating these discussions into concrete actions that will advance climate resilience and sustainability. We are also keen on forging partnerships to push for climate action not only in our County but the entire country and the continent as a whole.

We were also able to successfully roll out Phase 1 of the Dishi Na County initiative and 28 schools are already benefitting from the nutritious hot lunches. We hope to have all the public schools on board by next year as we work towards empowering the next generation through the transformative power of a simple meal.

Our county continues to experience remarkable economic growth, with new businesses opening their doors and a substantial increase in employment opportunities for our residents. We are fostering an environment where entrepreneurship thrives, and we are committed to sustaining this momentum.

I want to express my gratitude to our dedicated county officials, employees, and all of you, the residents, for your unwavering support and commitment to our county's progress. Together, we have achieved so much, and there is still much more we can accomplish.

Thank you for being an integral part of our county's success story. Together, we will continue to build a brighter, more prosperous future for all.

Sincerely,

H.E Hon. Sakaja Arthur Johnson, CBS

Deputy Governor's Note

Dear Fellow Residents,

It gives me immense pleasure to connect with you through this newsletter. As we progress further into another financial year, it is our collective responsibility to ensure that our county thrives and prospers. In this endeavor, one key aspiration stands out: to transform our beloved county into a Smart County.

A Smart County is not merely about adopting cutting-edge technology; it's about enhancing the overall quality of life for our residents. It's about creating an environment that is efficient, sustainable, and inclusive. It's about using innovation to address our most pressing challenges, and it's about ensuring that no one is left behind in this digital age.

As a county, we were greatly honoured to receive 2 prestigious awards at the recently held Africa Smart City Investment Summit in Kigali, Rwanda. The recognition underscores our growth as a county through the various smart city initiatives that have embraced cutting-edge technology to modernize county operations and revolutionize service delivery. Nairobi City County is growing in terms of its population and we need to think of new ways through which we can better provide services to the people. This is in line with our vision of creating a city of order, dignity, hope and opportunities, where no resident will be left behind.

The county government is here to serve you and make your lives better. We remain committed to working tirelessly to make our county and even better place to live, work and thrive.

Cleaning and Clearing Drainages: Chief among the priorities is the cleaning and unclogging of the city's drainage systems to prevent flooding. Recognizing the importance of this initiative, the County government has enlisted a considerable workforce of 3,500 environmental officers also known as the Green Army who will be responsible for maintaining clear and unobstructed drainages. 2,500 youth have been commissioned to begin working while the next cohort of 1,000 will join soon. The environmental officers will be deployed to all 17 Sub-counties.

Identifying Hazardous Buildings and Swift Evacuations: In addition to drainage maintenance, the County government is taking steps to identify and map out unsafe buildings that could pose threats during flooding. Prompt evacuations of residents living in these structures will be conducted to ensure their safety in the event of heavy rains.

Investment in Essential Equipment: To bolster its response capabilities, the County government has invested in vital equipment, including 27 new work trucks, fire trucks, flushing units, ambulances, excavators, and exhausters. This equipment will play a pivotal role in addressing various challenges that may arise during the rainy season, from flood response to emergency services.

Reducing Ambulance Response Times: Ensuring swift delivery of medical assistance during emergencies is a top priority for the county government. To achieve this, the county government has laid out plans to reduce ambulance response times to a remarkable 9 minutes, guaranteeing that vital medical aid reaches those in need promptly.

Historically, Nairobi has grappled with poor drainage systems, and the impending El Nino rains have raised concerns about potential floods, landslides, and other natural disasters that could impact the city. The comprehensive disaster management plan put forth by the Nairobi County government reflects a dedication to safeguarding the well-being of its residents and minimizing the potential risks associated with adverse weather conditions.

As the rainy season approaches, the effectiveness of these measures will be closely observed. The goal is clear: to ensure that Nairobi is well-prepared to navigate the challenges posed by El Nino rains, protect its residents, and enhance the city's resilience in the face of natural disasters.

The comprehensive disaster management plan put forth by the Nairobi County government reflects a dedication to safeguarding the well-being of its residents and minimizing the potential risks associated with adverse weather conditions.

Deputy Governor receives an award on behalf of Nairobi City during the Smart City Investment summit held in Kigali, Rwanda. Nairobi City was placed 3rd in the Africa Smart City investment Summit index in Africa and 1st in the Economic Tech Catalyst Category in Africa. The summit held in the month of September brought together more than 1,000 participants across Africa and beyond.

Nairobi County Empowers Citizens with 2,000 Title Deeds

In a significant move towards enhancing property rights and fostering development, Nairobi County has made a significant leap forward by issuing 2,000 title deeds to deserving allottees and various public institutions. The beneficiaries include Health Centers, Social Halls, Markets, Nairobi Water facilities, Playgrounds, public schools, and private developers. This initiative marks the beginning of a broader plan to issue a total of 7,000 title deeds, aiming to address the longstanding issue of untitled land in Nairobi.

During the handover ceremony, Nairobi Governor Johnson Sakaja emphasized the critical role of titling in providing security to property owners, subsequently encouraging investment and job creation. He underscored the fact that a staggering 88 percent of land in Nairobi remains untitled, hindering its potential to generate income and employment opportunities even decades after allocation.

The 2,000 title deeds that have been disbursed as part of the larger plan, encompass approximately 100 deeds allocated to public institutions, notably benefiting 39 public schools and Early Childhood Development (ECD) centers. Schools such as Ngei Primary, Wango Primary, Juja Road Primary School, and others have finally been granted the security of ownership with their newly acquired title deeds. This move has been celebrated by school representatives who have expressed relief at having legal protection for their properties, which have been without formal titles for a long period.

Beyond educational institutions, public facilities like Ndakaini Dam, Ruiru Dam, Pumwani Hospital, and Kasarani Health Centre have also received the crucial documentation, enhancing their ownership security and warding off potential encroachments. The Governor, in line with these efforts, affirmed the commitment to digitize land records to deter land grabbing and streamline the land ownership process for the benefit of the residents.

Governor Sakaja shed light on the historical delay in issuing ownership titles, mainly affecting elderly citizens who have waited for over five decades. One of the beneficiaries of a group investment Mr. Simon Muchai lauded the Governor's efforts in giving out the title deeds especially to the old people who had waiting for many years. He is hopeful that those who have not received their title deeds will do so because of the commitment they have seen from the Governor Sakaja's office. He is looking forward to developing the property with his partners and generating some income from it which he believes will also benefit the county government through land rates.

Another beneficiary Mr. John Omondi who owns property in Toto Bora Kayole, expressed relief upon receiving his title deed after more than 5 years of waiting. He commended the Governor for ensuring that they get their titles within a year of his coming to office. He now feels secure as a property owner and hopes to increase his source of income through the development of his property.

Governor Sakaja has emphasized the economic empowerment potential that comes with owning a title deed, opening doors for property holders to fully utilize their assets. He also denounced land cartels and urged them to adhere to the county's systems, highlighting ongoing efforts to reclaim public land seized by private developers.

This recent initiative is part of a larger endeavor by the Governor to restore public land rightfully owned by the community, ensuring equitable and just distribution of property rights. Through such concerted efforts, Nairobi County envisions a future where property rights are secure, providing a foundation for sustainable growth and development.

Dishi Na County

Dishi Na county officially launched as children reported to school in Term 3. About 80,000 pupils, attached to 46 schools in Nairobi are currently benefiting from the first phase of the program.

Speaking at Baba Dogo Primary School in Ruaraka Constituency during the official launch of the programme dubbed Dishi Na County, Sakaja said he will bring legislation that will seek to open doors for private schools in Nairobi to benefit from the program.

"In Nairobi County, we are going to be legislation so that we can create a governance structure around school feeding. We are going to bring the School Lunch Act that will even give us a board so that we can incorporate the private sector," Sakaja said.

The French Government led by Dr Chrysoula Zacharopoulou, France Minister of State for Development pledged Kes.160 Million during their visit at Toi Primary and Olympic Primary to assess the program.

Governor Sakaja expressed his gratitude to the French government for the support. He said school going children in Nairobi must be treated with dignity and respect, even as they attended classes.

The recently launched program ensures children in public primary schools and ECDs get a nutritious hot meal each day for Sh5 daily. The mode of payment for the meals are being made via Mpesa through a digital platform 'tap2Eat'

Governor Sakaja exuded confidence the feeding program will not only keep children in school but also increase enrollment.

Recently Governor Sakaja signed a three year intergovernmental partnership agreement with the national government on the implementation of a school meal plan in Nairobi.

Phase 2 of the program set to be rolled out within the current school term while Phase three is rolled out when schools reopen in the New Year.

The Africa Climate Summit: battling climate change in Nairobi

Climate change is a formidable challenge, casting its shadow over the livelihoods of Kenyans, including those residing in Nairobi City County. The adversities posed by climate change in the city are multifaceted, ranging from carbon emissions to dwindling water resources, leading to the rationing of this precious commodity. Additionally, it affects hydropower generation, a major energy source for the nation, and exacerbates the vulnerability of the urban poor in the city.

Nairobi County played host to the inaugural Africa Climate Summit, also known as Africa Climate Week between the 4th and the 6th of September 2023. Under the leadership of H.E. Hon. Sakaja Johnson, the city expressed appreciation for the commitment, cooperation, and dedication exhibited by African leaders in exploring ways to reduce greenhouse gas emissions while adapting to the challenges posed by the climate crisis.

Nairobi has grappled with recurring floods, causing significant damage and disruption to the city. To combat this calamity once and for all, Governor Sakaja has embarked on a mission of afforestation. The planting of trees serves as a natural solution to absorb waves and surges, forming a protective barrier against floods. According to the governor, afforestation is a pivotal step in addressing the climate crisis.

In his fervent pursuit of a greener Nairobi, 950 thousand trees have already been planted. This year, the County government has set an ambitious target to plant 1.5 million trees. This proactive approach promises to transform Nairobi into a "Green City Under the Sun," a reality that future generations will inherit.

Governor Sakaja emphasizes that it's not merely about planting trees; it's about nurturing their growth. This commitment is poised to significantly reduce air pollution, ensuring that the people of Nairobi breathe clean and fresh air.

Nairobi's proactive stance in combating climate change, as witnessed at the Africa Climate Summit, underscores the city's dedication to sustainable development. By afforestation and embracing green initiatives, the city is poised to enhance its resilience to climate-related challenges, ensuring a brighter and healthier future for its residents. Nairobi is not just a city; it's a beacon of hope in the fight against climate change.

Governor Sakaja Announces Waivers on Permits and Daily Levies for Nairobi County's Content Creators

In a significant stride towards empowering Nairobi County's content creators, Governor H.E. Sakaja engaged in a candid Q&A session with these innovative minds. The discussion centered on addressing the longstanding challenges faced by the creative community and devising solutions to overcome them. Among these challenges, photographers and videographers have grappled with stringent requirements imposed by county officials to shoot within the capital.

Governor Sakaja has made a resounding commitment by eliminating all business licenses and waiving fees for photographers and filmmakers in Nairobi, granting them the opportunity to shoot freely within the city. This significant gesture not only empowers content creators to pursue their passions but also generates employment opportunities for the city's youth.

Take a leisurely stroll along Kenyatta Avenue, Kimathi Street, Muindi Mbingu, and Koinange Streets on a weekend afternoon, and you'll encounter scores of young enthusiasts armed with cameras, passionately creating a diverse range of content.

Governor Sakaja elaborated on the profound impact of this move, stating, "Beyond drawing inspiration from industry experts, content creators now have the chance to establish partnerships with some of the world's most influential individuals and corporations through collaboration with Nairobi City County. This creates significant opportunities for securing wlt is evident that Nairobi City County Government is unwavering in its commitment to support content creators, ensuring they can earn a livelihood without undue harassment by authorities and exemption from permits.

"We have eliminated all business permits for content creators in Nairobi, and the daily shooting fees have also been abolished, as promised by H.E. Governor Sakaja. Moreover, we are prepared to provide essential support such as ambulances and fire engines whenever necessary during shoots," stated Ms. Suzanne Silantoi, CECM – Health, Wellness, and Nutrition.

In addition, content creators had the privilege of learning invaluable tips and tricks specific to their industry during the meeting with Governor Sakaja and their fellow creators. These insights will equip them with the knowledge for channel growth and overall success. These quarterly meetings will also offer a platform for like-minded creators to connect and enjoy good times together as they learn from each other.

Governor Sakaja also revealed that his administration plans to allocate specific streets for cultural displays, sports tournaments, and various recreational activities during weekends. Free parking for vehicles during these events will further enhance the experience.

"I extend my heartfelt thanks to Governor Sakaja for being the first governor to engage content creators, attentively listening to our challenges, and offering solutions. As this marks our inaugural meeting, I am optimistic that positive change will sweep through our creative industry, enabling us to make a living from our passion," expressed Joseph Mwabili, a photographer.

In a final push to bolster the creative industry, Governor Sakaja urged content creators to participate in the upcoming Nairobi Festival. Early registration is encouraged to secure a coveted spot in this December celebration, which will showcase and celebrate the vibrant culture and spirit of the city.

PRESS RELEASE
(For Immediate Release)

THURSDAY, 14 SEPTEMBER 2023

DISPATCH FROM COUNTY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

His Excellency Governor Sakaja Arthur Johnson, CBS, today chaired the Nairobi City County Executive Committee (CEC) at City Hall, Nairobi.

TODAY'S CEC MEETING considered policy issues that impact on service delivery to the citizens of Nairobi, under the four pillars of Order, Dignity, Hope and Opportunities for All.

The County Executive Committee approved steps for REVOCATION AND CANCELLATION OF LAND TITLES for parcels that belong to the Nairobi City County Government. Specifically, a 15-acre piece of land be repossessed in Mathare Sub-County that is proposed for a County Aggregation and Industrial Park (CAIP) which had, in 2006, been subdivided into 37 plots and whose allottees had processed deed plans and title deeds. Implementation of the CAIP requires that the existing private titles be revoked and cancelled.

In addition, the land on which Nairobi City County Upper Hill Day Nursery School in Langata Sub-County stands, and for which two title deeds that have been produced by private entities, are to be repossessed. The nursery school is an operational county facility with over 200 children, and the titles to the private entities were issued when the school was already in operation.

Further, the land on which Kimathi Early Childhood Development Education (ECDE) stands, in Embakasi West Sub-County, and for which a private entity has produced a title deed for a shopping mall, will also be repossessed. The individual has threatened to demolish the ECDE Centre on account of holding a land title. The land was originally set aside for a shopping centre and a community hall during the planning of Kimathi Estate, before the residents opted for a school.

The County Executive Committee resolved to invite the Ethics and Anti-Corruption Commission (EACC) to investigate circumstances under which the public land was grabbed, and titles produced. This is with a view to cancelling the titles and taking action against those involved in the illegal alienation of public land.

The Cabinet also discussed proposed new MEASURES FOR SAFEGUARDING COUNTY PUBLIC UTILITY LAND. A Cabinet committee was mandated to, within 14 days, advise on specific steps to be taken to safeguard public utilities. The Cabinet approved a raft of measures to prevent misappropriation of county public land. Applicants for planning proposals with surrenders will henceforth be required to sign transfer instruments for the surrenders in favour of the County Government before issuance of final approvals and certificates.

The County government resolved to explore legal instruments to register county public utility land.

Education and Talent Development in Nairobi County

Since assuming office as the Governor of Nairobi, H.E. Sakaja Johnson has consistently demonstrated an unwavering commitment to improving education access and nurturing talent development among the city's youth. His recent budget allocation for the fiscal year 2023/2024 serves as a resounding testament to this commitment. Governor Sakaja pledged a substantial Kshs 829,283,024 toward the Talent, Skills, Development, and Care sector, with a significant portion, Kshs 169,883,024, dedicated to enhancing educational services.

Governor Sakaja's vision is crystal clear: to ensure that every child in Nairobi has the opportunity to receive a solid educational foundation. To bring this vision to life, the Nairobi County Government has embarked on a series of innovative programs and projects designed to significantly boost school enrollment rates, spanning from Early Childhood Development Education (ECDE) to higher education.

One of the hallmark initiatives spearheaded by Governor Sakaja is the provision of bursaries and executive scholarships to disadvantaged students. This initiative effectively removes financial barriers that hinder their pursuit of education. Additionally, the construction of ECDE centers across the city is well underway, addressing the urgent need for more learning facilities at the earliest stages of a child's education.

The "Dishi Na County" school feeding program has played a pivotal role in attracting more pupils to enroll in public pre-primary and primary schools. The influx of students has necessitated the construction of new classrooms by the county government to accommodate the growing number of eager learners.

On July 5, 2023, Governor Sakaja took a significant stride forward by allocating a Kshs 100 million grant to ECDE centers. He announced that this financial support would be managed by ECDE boards, following established guidelines. The primary goal of this initiative is to double the number of ECDE learners from 30,000 to 60,000 within just one year. Furthermore, Governor Sakaja pledged to oversee the construction of additional ECDE classrooms to alleviate overcrowding and ensure that no child is left behind.

The dedication to expanding educational opportunities reached a significant milestone on August 31, 2023, when Governor Sakaja inaugurated three brand-new classrooms at Kongoni ECDE in Lang'ata Sub-county and an additional three classrooms at Imara Primary School in Embakasi Central Sub-county. This marked just the beginning of a remarkable journey, as the governor unveiled plans to construct a total of 500 new ECDE classrooms throughout Nairobi. This ambitious endeavor aims to support the groundbreaking Free Early Childhood Development Education program, the first of its kind in the country.

In conclusion, Governor Sakaja Johnson's tireless efforts to enhance education access and talent development in Nairobi are making a profound impact on the lives of countless children and their families. With a forward-looking vision and unwavering dedication, he is reshaping the educational landscape of the city, ensuring that every child's potential is nurtured and realized
